WHY DO WE NEED DADS' UNI?

Modern Society was built upon Moral and Ethical Foundations

The morals and ethics of any society or nation are the fabric that holds it together. The way we relate to each other and treat our fellow man will ultimately influence our entire nation, either for good or for evil. Without a solid moral and ethical framework, a society begins to break down, piece by piece, person by person, family by family, suburb by suburb, and city by city.

The breakdown happens slowly over several generations until it implodes upon itself and is destroyed. Although the decline seems slow from where we stand in history, it is measurable, measured by several factors of which we are all aware.

Divorce rates, crime rates, youth suicide on the increase, the widespread breakdown of the family unit, the huge increase in the number of unwanted pregnancies and abortions in our nation, violence in our schools and streets, and gang-related crime.

To find a solution to the problems we face as a society we must first identify how they began. Within the 20th Century, two major revolutions profoundly affected our society, the first was the industrial revolution and the second was the sexual revolution. The industrial revolution transformed our society from one that was originally based upon an agricultural and farming base to one that became primarily an industry base.

It took the men and the fathers out of their homes and placed them in the factories and workplaces. They were no longer available 24/7 to raise their sons and daughters and to teach them how they should go in life but were often absent for 10-12 hrs a day 6-7 days a week making a living to support their families financially. Many of you may recognize a similar situation in your schedule.

The parenting role began to fall more and more to the mothers as the men went off to work each day. The men no longer had the input into the raising of the children as they had for generations past, and what was previously a cooperative effort between both parents, became almost solely the responsibility of the mother. This fundamental change in the way we raised our children was to have a profound effect over the next two generations, as the father's role seemed to decrease more and more.

The second revolution that we faced in the 20th Century was the sexual revolution of the 1960s. They called it 'The Age of Aquarius', and with it came a major cultural change. The revolution encouraged free sex and experimentation with drugs, it encouraged rebellion against authority and what is called moral and ethical relativism, where 'if it feels good and doesn't hurt anybody else, do it!' It gave birth to a philosophical position of 'no absolutes', where every fact or creed is challenged and often discarded.

(Psalm 2) says " Why do the nations rage, and the people plot a vain thing, the kings of the earth set themselves and the rulers take counsel together against The Lord and against His Anointed, saying ' let us break their bonds in pieces and cast away their cords from us."

The revolution of the 1960s was determined to free itself from the moral and ethical framework of our society, to reach for a higher goal. They aspired to greater freedom, but a generation later we find ourselves more and more in bondage. The better life that they hoped for has not eventuated. It is time to return to the moral and ethical foundations that made our nations great, a framework that does work and has been proven over many hundreds of years.

Our foundation stones have been laid in the Judaeo-Christian Ethic, The Ten Commandments, and the teachings of the Holy Bible. As we as fathers and the leaders of our families, return to the moral and ethical standards of the bible, we will strengthen the next generation. We will rebuild the firm foundation for them to stand upon so that our children and our children's children would know the stability and strength that God has destined for them.

DADS' UNI: UNDERSTANDING

I thought it was time to revisit the foundations of Dads 'UNI and to explain afresh the elements that make us who we are as an organization. While in the role as Senior Pastor of a church on Australia's Gold Coast in the 1990's I received the idea and concept of Dads' UNI whilst in prayer. Any God-given calling doesn't merely reside in the mind as an idea only but is 'birthed in the spirit' of the person 'He' has called to fulfill the work. In such a way God spoke to me and implanted a seed inside me which is constantly being watered and growing into a fruitful ministry. Initially, I'd like to speak about the first letter of our acronym UNI, and the word it stands for is Understanding.

Knowledge can open the doorway to Understanding and Wisdom

Dads' UNI is based upon the three foundation precepts of Understanding, Nurturing, and Imparting. These three areas address the requirements of the mind, the emotions, and the spirit of man and seek to bring them into a position where they can receive the fullness of God's blessing and abundant life.

Dads' UNI - Understanding

Understanding:

Noun - the ability to understand something; comprehension.

To comprehend, to apprehend, to grasp, to perceive, to discern, to appreciate, to conceive or absorb

(Proverbs 2:1-5) My son, if you receive my words, and treasure my commands within you, So that you incline your ear to wisdom, and apply your heart to understanding; Yes, if you cry out for discernment, and lift up your voice for understanding, If you seek her as silver, and search for her as for hidden treasures; Then you will understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God.

The mind is a gateway into our inner life and it is here that we must begin if we are to be successful in bringing about the change that is required to transform our lives. Right thinking will open up the path to right actions which will bring about the right results in life, whereas wrong thinking will open the path to wrong actions which will bring about wrong results in life. How crucial it is therefore to start by laying the correct mental foundation so that we make the way open for a wonderful life.

Having understanding is more than merely acquiring knowledge on any given subject, it may begin in the mind but then it must go deeper into our human experience. Understanding comes through reflection and meditation upon the important areas of life and the experience we receive in their out-working over the years. Dads' UNI provides our teachings worldwide to any man desiring to improve as a parent by understanding, perceiving, and grasping the truths of fatherhood.

Understanding Wisdom

(Proverbs 21:30) There is no wisdom, or understanding, or counsel against the Lord.

There are many 'experts' these days with much to say on any given subject and often we as the public listen to their counsel and follow their advice. However, it is also important to note that these are merely fallible men who have been educated and trained by other fallible men in our Universities and Colleges. My point is this, much of their advice may be sound and usable in our lives but we should not fall into the error of accepting without question those things which they say.

There is I believe a 'Litmus Test' that should be applied to every area of life if we are to truly attain wisdom and not merely have our heads filled with the knowledge of men. That 'Litmus Test' is the comparison that we must all make between what the 'experts' say and what God Himself says in the Bible. God is revealed as our Creator, it was He who designed us and knows every aspect of our lives intimately. God has always been and always will be and His eternal life is filled with infinite knowledge. Without a doubt, there is no one more qualified than our heavenly Father to dispense wisdom and knowledge, and those who disagree with what He says on any given subject will ultimately be proven to be in error.

Wisdom comes when we understand how to apply those truths we find in God's word in a way that is acceptable in His sight, so that we may fully benefit ourselves and our fellow man. Dads' UNI aims to bring understanding and wisdom to the important areas of parenting and empower fathers to raise wonderful children.

Understanding Responsibility

(Psalm 127:3) Behold, children are a heritage from the Lord, the fruit of the womb is a reward.

Children are one of the greatest rewards we as a man can receive on this earth, but with that reward comes a responsibility to care for them. God our heavenly Father has delegated the care of each child born to its parents and especially to the father of the child, and it is ultimately before Him that we must stand and give an account of how we treated our children.

Every father was first a son, and as a son relied upon his parents to provide for him, protect him from danger, and guide him in life. Without these basic safeguards, a child has little chance of survival in the hostile world we live in. It is a father's responsibility to accept this challenge of taking care of his child and ensuring to the best of his ability that they have every opportunity in life.

Fathers who fail to accept their role in the family abandon their children to many destructive and harmful attacks. A child has no way to defend itself in a hostile world but is easily taken advantage of when there is no provider, protector, or guide in life. Dads' UNI emphasizes the importance of shouldering our parental responsibilities as a pathway to becoming the best men that we could be.

Understanding Relationships

(John 15:13) Greater love has no one than this, than to lay down one's life for his friends.

Life in this world is about relationships. Our first relationship is with our parents and siblings in the family in which we were born, and it is here that we learn many of the keys to maintaining and building healthy relationships. Understanding the importance of showing respect and honor to each member of the family, and especially your parents lays a foundation for understanding how all relationships in life work.

The realization that we all get offended at times by others and we also offend others is easily understood, because we are all individuals and think differently on many subjects. It is because of the proliferation of 'offenses' in life that we must master the life principle of giving and receiving forgiveness regularly. As we go through life the keys of respect, honor, and forgiveness are outworked in our friendships at school, our relationship with our girlfriends, and ultimately will be with our wives and family.

Those who fail to master these basic principles of how to relate to another human being will struggle to be truly successful throughout their lives, for it is within relationships that we find our greatest fulfillment and happiness. Dads' UNI teaches that it is within our relationships that we find both our greatest blessings and our greatest challenges in life, and without a doubt, it is those fathers who lay down their selfish desires and choose to serve that enjoy the experience most.

Understanding Values

(Proverbs 12:22) Lying lips are an abomination to the Lord, but those who deal truthfully are His delight.

The values we esteem within society like working hard, being honest, and treating our fellow man with kindness are based upon the principles of God's Word. These values are eternal and proven throughout the history of mankind to be beneficial not only to those who practice them but also to the society in general that profits from them.

Values and standards in society set a benchmark of what is acceptable behavior and what is not and should be established clearly and taught to every member of our society. Historically it is often when we as a society stray from these standards and disregard these values that we find ourselves experiencing the negative results of selfish and cruel acts perpetrated upon individuals and communities.

Dads' UNI advocates the return of our society to the Biblical standards observed by our forefathers, so that we may enjoy the security and stability that they have been proven to bring to us all.

Understanding God's Principles

(Galatians 6:7) Do not be deceived, God is not mocked; for whatever a man sows, that he will also reap.

Many principles are spoken of within God's Word and they all apply to our lives as men and fathers. Daily study of the scriptures in the Bible gives many insights into both what is acceptable in the sight of God and what will benefit our lives as men here on the earth. God watches everything we do in life and He has set principles in motion that rebound back to us many of the acts we commit in life, whether they are positive or negative.

If we are kind to others we will also be shown kindness somewhere in our life, if we are generous toward those who are in need then God will not forsake us in our own time of need. If we forgive others of their errors and come to God humbly seeking His mercy, then God will surely forgive us our errors too. But if we are harsh and cruel toward our fellow man or devious and wicked in our hearts then we will reap the harvest of the destructive seeds we have sown and bring judgment down upon our heads.

By understanding that God's principles are established forever on the earth we as men can choose to walk in a way that will not only benefit us individually but also the children we are raising. Dads' UNI upholds that in life it is always advantageous to do things God's way so that we may receive the fullness of the blessing He desires to give our family.

Acquiring an understanding heart is the foundation for receiving wisdom in every area of our lives, especially in the area of fatherhood. This is obtained through both loving and fearing God and putting His ways first in your life. Every other aspect of life falls into its proper place when this foundation stone is laid firmly in our hearts as a man. To be the best man and father we can be in this world we need to seek daily to acquire an understanding of mind and heart, and the blessings that they release into our family.

DADS' UNI: NURTURING

I am continually reminded about the importance of laying a firm foundation in every area of life if what we are attempting to build is to stand the test of time. This principle remains true whether we are building our new home, considering a career change, or planning for a family. Building something that will last requires time, effort, and a considerable amount of wisdom. Continuing our short series on the foundation principles of our Dads' UNI organization that are found within our acronym UNI, we progress to the word Nurturing.

Our children need to be nurtured in many areas

Dads' UNI is based upon the three foundation precepts of Understanding, Nurturing, and Imparting. These three areas address the needs of the mind, the emotions, and the spirit of man and seek to bring them into a position where they can receive the fullness of God's blessing and abundant life.

Dads' UNI - Nurturing

Nurturing

Verb - Caring for and protecting (someone or something) while they are growing

Helping or encouraging the development of (someone or something)

Cherishing (a hope, belief, or ambition).

When I write about Nurturing my mind inevitably reverts to the illustration which I believe best describes the process of Nurture and the picture is that of a plant conservatory. In a well-prepared and thought-out plant conservatory, all the elements that are needed to bring a plant from seedling to full maturity are present.

The basic elements required for plants to thrive are water, sunshine, good soil, clean air, and room to grow. There needs to be the right amount of each element, distributed at the correct time for the plant to truly thrive. It is also important that each plant be positioned in the correct location for its requirements. Every plant is different and has differing needs and so it is with children, they are all unique and it is our job as a father to identify their individual needs and provide the best environment for them to grow and truly prosper in life.

Every gardener knows that plants don't just need attention when they are seedlings, but constant care is also required while they continue to grow into maturity. This principle is relevant in our role of fatherhood, we are the gardeners and our children are our plantings. Like plants, our children will require the correct amount of nutrients to be added to their lives at the right times to help them grow. They will also require a constant weeding around them to keep them free of the restraints of bad influences. In our nurturing role, we will need to ensure that our children are receiving those elements they require daily and we must be prepared to prune away the wrong attitudes that all children develop.

(Deuteronomy 11:18-21) "Therefore you shall lay up these words of mine in your heart and in your soul, and bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as front lets between your eyes. You shall teach them to your children, speaking of them when you sit in your house, when you walk by the way, when you lie down, and when you rise up. And you shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates, that your days and the days of your children may be multiplied in the land of which the Lord swore to your fathers to give them, like the days of the heavens above the earth."

Like the nurturing father described in the scripture above, our role must be constant and vigilant to ensure that our children are raised in the best possible way and thereby given the best possible chance of a wonderful life and eternity. What follows is a shortlist of some of the areas we will need to be diligent in as a father.

Physical Nurture

To nurture our children physically we as fathers need to provide for them the basics of life such as food, clothing, and shelter. These components will sustain the natural physical life of a human being so that they can grow into full maturity, from a child to an adult. A balanced and nutrient-rich diet containing fruit and vegetables, proteins, and grains is broadly recommended by nutritionists. It is also our responsibility to provide clean well-fitting clothes and a safe and secure place to live to ensure that our child is physically prepared for life.

If we as the father and head of the home lead an active physical life, then our children are far more likely to follow our example and also be active and healthy. By encouraging them to pursue a sport or activity and supporting them in it we can help ensure that they can grow strong and fit for life. Taking on a supportive role as a manager or coach of their team or even just a regular supporter will make a big difference to your child, as your approval as their father is vital for their well-being.

Emotional Nurture

A child's needs however do not stop at physical requirements, every child has an emotional appetite that must be met as well. We as fathers, in partnership with our wives, need to provide for the emotional needs of our children by establishing a loving, caring, and supportive environment for them to grow up in. I cannot stress too much how important emotional nurture is in the life of a child, especially that which comes from their father.

Boys need to do things such as hug and wrestle with their father regularly to help develop a positive and balanced male self-image and avoid the gender confusion that is constantly being promoted in the world. Girls need the hugs and tickling from a loving and encouraging father that treats them like a princess and tells them how wonderful she is, this will impart to her the self-image she requires to be a healthy and happy individuals. Both actions from a father impart love and acceptance to a young child and help develop them into emotionally secure adults.

Intellectual Nurture

Our children's minds are designed to be a library and resource that they can draw upon throughout life to help them travel successfully through this world. But each library must first be fitted out and stocked with books and it is here that we as parents have a huge opportunity and responsibility. We can ensure that the information stored within the database of their mind is valid, encouraging and pointing them in the right direction in life.

By reading to our children at an early age we can impart to them a love of learning and train them to use their imagination. Fathers who read to their children strengthen the bond they share. There is often a wonderful interaction between them via the inevitable questions that arise from telling stories. Regular bedtime stories are a wonderful way to nurture our children intellectually and open an educational pathway that will help them get ahead in life.

Spiritual Nurture

A child's spirit is the central hub out of which they live and relate to the world. It is incredibly important to protect a child's spirit by ensuring that the words they hear about themselves are encouraging and imparting hope for their future. As a father, we need to share our values, faith, and beliefs with our child that they may share our direction in life and hope for eternity.

Many things in the world are destructive for a child and none more so than the words that people speak and the influences that surround them. Although we can't protect them from every negative situation, we can ensure that the majority of the influences and words spoken over their lives are positive and encouraging, rather than destructive and belittling.

Nurturing our children may not come naturally for many men, as we have come out of generations where father/child nurturing relationships have been neglected or even discarded entirely. The good news is that every man has the ability hard-wired within themselves to succeed in this wonderful area of parenthood. It is by applying ourselves as men and committing to nurturing relationships that we can create a strong bond with our child that will last a lifetime.

DADS' UNI: IMPARTING

One of the most wonderful things a father can do in life is to bestow a blessing upon his children. We all have a blessing to give, whether it's a kind word, an encouraging smile, or something that can be defined as a spiritual endowment. We can only give to others that which we have ourselves, and so it is with our blessing, as a father we can share a part of our life with our child. As we conclude our short series on the foundation principles of our Dads' UNI organization that are found within our acronym UNI, we arrive at the final word Imparting.

Every father has a blessing to give their child

Dads' UNI is based upon the three foundation precepts of Understanding, Nurturing, and Imparting. These three areas address the needs of the mind, the emotions, and the spirit of man and seek to bring them into a position where they can receive the fullness of God's blessing and abundant life.

Dads' UNI - Imparting

Impart

Verb - To make known. (information)

to communicate, to pass on or convey, to disseminate or circulate

To bestow (a quality)

to give, to confer, to grant, to bestow, to provide, to supply or contribute.

As a father, we have all received authority from God our Heavenly Father. Our authority is to be the head of our home and the person most responsible before God for the raising of our children. Although in modern times many men seem to have delegated much of their parental responsibilities to their wives, this is a short-sighted solution that is destined to fail. Children need their fathers to be fully involved in every area of their life if they are to prosper and mature physically, mentally, emotionally, and spiritually.

The spiritual blessing that fathers must give their children is powerful and has far-reaching effects on their children's lives. Like the roots that spread out from a tree, so a father's blessing reaches far beyond the initial imparting. What follows is a shortlist of some of the most common ways a father can impart a blessing to his children.

Baby Dedication

(Matthew 19:14) But Jesus said, "Let the little children come to Me, and do not forbid them; for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

One of the most traditional opportunities that fathers must impart a blessing to their child is through baby dedication. In baby dedication, a child is presented before God for His blessing and God is petitioned to watch over and protect the life of the child. The parents are often requested also to commit before God to bring the child up in the fear and love of God, and the child is either prayed over by the minister and parents or in some churches the child receives a baptism of water. Whatever the process in your church the important thing is that it is done because having God Himself watching over and protecting your child is incredibly powerful.

Fathers should take advantage of this wonderful time to begin the process of imparting the spiritual blessing to their children by dedicating them to the Lord as a baby. This is often the first in a marvelous series of opportunities we must strengthen our bond with our child through connecting spiritually with our Heavenly Father and His blessing.

Reading Bible Stories

(Psalm 78:3-4) Which we have heard and known, and our fathers have told us. We will not hide them from their children, telling the generation to come the praises of the Lord, and His strength and His wonderful works that He has done.

The Bible is filled with amazing stories of how God has moved powerfully in the lives of real people like us in times past. As we as their father read these stories to our children their hearts are opened to the imparting of faith, which comes from hearing God's word. The miracles in the bible are meant to be retold from generation to generation so that each new era in history has an opportunity to rise and see God's hand move in their times as well.

Reading the Bible stories to our children reinforces our beliefs, standards, and values in their young hearts and inspires them to live a life that will bring honor to themselves and their families.

Praying For Our Child

(Numbers 6:23-26) "Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying, 'This is the way you shall bless the children of Israel. Say to them: "The Lord bless you and keep you, The Lord make His face shine upon you, and be gracious to you; The Lord lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace.'"

It is a father's role to be the protector of the family, and one of the most important ways to safeguard our marriage and children is through the vehicle of believing prayer. God has stated that if you come to Him in humility and ask for His forgiveness and His help that He will indeed begin to move in your life and watch over you and your family as you pray daily.

The prayer above is a wonderful way to impart a blessing to your child and can either be sung or spoken quietly while they sleep at night. It can also be added to your daily prayers for God's grace and mercy to be upon your child's life and spoken with thanksgiving that God is indeed accomplishing it faithfully.

Praying Over Our Child

(Mark 10:15-16) Assuredly, I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will by no means enter it." And He took them up in His arms, laid His hands on them, and blessed them.

The blessing that comes with the laying on of hands is often powerful and life-changing for a child. When a believing father prays over his child through laying on of hands the Spirit of God is imparted to the child and a blessing comes with it. Because it is spiritual the blessing is not always fully understood, it is however a transference of some of the very best things that God has established in you throughout your life into the heart and spirit of your child.

As I said before we as a man can usually only give those things that we possess away to others as a blessing, there is however an exception to this rule. When a father who is filled with the Holy Spirit prays over his child, there are occasions when God Himself will reveal something by His Holy Spirit and impart a word of encouragement and faith through revelation or prophecy. I have personally experienced these many times and although we as men may only understand a minute portion of God's plans for our child's life, yet even that knowledge can impart vision and faith into our child's heart.

Leading Your Child To Christ

(2 Timothy 3:14-15) But you must continue in the things which you have learned and been assured of, knowing from whom you have learned them, and that from childhood you have known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make you wise for salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

The goal of every father should be to ensure that his child has every opportunity to find salvation through Christ Jesus. In a million years the only decision that counts, will be whether we believe in Christ's death, burial, and resurrection from the dead. As a man, we need to ensure that our faith is strengthened and encouraged daily through prayer and study of God's word in the Bible and fellowship with other believers so that we have an abundance of spiritual blessing and wisdom to impart into the life of our child.

In my experience, there is nothing more important in life than preparing our child both for life here on earth and in eternity. There are many challenges that we will face throughout life as a father and in every one of them, it is advantageous to have the blessing and favor of God over our lives and the lives of our children. Spiritual Imparting is the key to opening up the doors of faith and hope in the hearts of our children and every father is called by God to take up this all-important role.

MORALS, ETHICS, LAWS AND STANDARDS IN SOCIETY

The complex fabric that is woven to make up the society we live in consists of many unique threads. Each of us individually has a place in the weave and without us, the entire tapestry would be a lesser creation. There are however certain underpinning threads that have been woven into the fabric that is stronger than others and upon which the entire creation relies, if these threads fail then the complete design is in danger of collapsing. These underpinning threads include the morals and ethics, the laws and standards of our society and if these underlying threads are not protected then the whole institution will eventually fail. An overall understanding of these areas assists us with our parenting decisions and enables us to practice positive parenting.

Morals

(Exodus 20:14) "You shall not commit adultery".

Morals are the basis of how we determine what is right and wrong, when they have been clearly defined our choices are easier to make. Our morality defines how we treat each other personally in society and appears particularly focused upon sexual purity and fidelity. The Judaeo-Christian foundations of our society identified what was acceptable in the eyes of God and assisted mankind in knowing how we should conduct ourselves. It is by standing upon these proven foundations that we find stability as a society.

There seems however in recent times to have been a concerted effort to undermine and destroy the very moral fabric of our society and replace it with 'amoral' behavior which is defined as a lack of moral sensibility. The erosion of our society's moral standards has increased markedly within our generation, and what was unthinkable only 50 years ago is now accepted as normal in many areas of life.

'Immorality' as defined by a lifestyle outside the accepted standards of moral behavior, is the predominant choice of many people in the world. These individuals have rejected the values that we have built our society upon and replaced them with their ideas of what is acceptable. Sadly, many people in this generation no longer have a clear understanding of what is right or wrong, therefore fail in realizing their greatest potential by living a life of honor in obedience to God's word.

One of the benefits of having a society founded upon a solid moral code is that each person already has a safe track to run on in life and they don't have to try to re-invent the wheel and figure it all out themselves.

Ethics

(Exodus 20:15-16) "You shall not steal. "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbour".

Ethics simply explained is how we treat each other in a non-personal or commercial setting. This may involve but is not limited to elements of fairness, consistency, transparency, and honesty.

How we treat our fellow man in the world is in a large way determined by our accepted ethical standards or lack thereof. Those who fail to adopt the need for high ethical standards in their behavior tend to find it much easier to take advantage of others in many of life's situations. These people often become the con-men, the embezzlers, and the criminals in our society, and they leave a trail of turmoil and distress behind them where ever they go. Their lack of personal integrity allows wicked thoughts and despicable schemes to be devised in their hearts, that ultimately lead to underhanded and fraudulent acts against innocent people.

One of the benefits of having a society founded upon a solid ethical code is that every person rich or poor is treated with respect and a degree of honor and not taken advantage of.

Laws

(Romans 13:1-2) Let every soul be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and the authorities that exist are appointed by God. Therefore, whoever resists the authority resists the ordinance of God, and those who resist will bring judgement on themselves.

Laws are instituted by governments and are binding upon every member of that community, ensuring that each person has both rights and responsibilities. Laws are implemented to keep the worst elements of our society restrained and to facilitate safety and security for all its members.

Those unprincipled members of society whose hearts are set upon chaos and maliciousness are restricted to a certain extent by the fear of judgment that the laws of the land bring. Laws would not be needed if society was filled with people who merely loved and cared for each other, but when there are so many who are unscrupulous and set upon a path of wickedness we need all the protections that the laws can give us.

Historically any country that is run without laws is most often ruled only by the strongest and most brutal of men, those who by intimidation bully everyone else into submission. In a society where violence may be imminent at any given moment, it is the laws and regulations of the land that help to protect us and keep the peace we all deserve and have grown to expect.

One of the benefits of having a society that is based upon a system of laws and individual protections is that we can allow each member of society to feel safe and prosper.

Standards

(1 Kings 7:13-14) Now King Solomon sent and brought Hiram from Tyre. He was the son of a widow from the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a bronze worker; he was filled with wisdom and understanding and skill in working with all kinds of bronze work. So, he came to King Solomon and did all his work.

Standards are an authoritative level of quality that is the accepted norm in our society, it is what we can safely expect in our dealings with others. We as members of society should be able to safely expect a certain degree or standard of understanding and skill from those whose services we seek out in our everyday lives.

If we go to a restaurant we should confidently expect that our food has been sourced using good quality products and has been prepared in a hygienic environment, because these are the standards that are required by our government's health department.

If we needed to undergo brain surgery we would expect that our doctors would have many years of experience in operating on people and that they would have consistently achieved a very high standard in their profession. These professional standards are our protection as members of a society and without them, it would be more difficult to have the confidence required to undergo this life-saving surgery.

One of the benefits of having set standards in society is to give its citizens confidence in the quality of the items we are seeking to purchase or the services we intend to use. Standards mean that we are not playing Russian roulette whenever we need to access the assistance of a business or provider in our city.

Ultimately it is the Morals, Ethics, Laws, and Standards that assist greatly in keeping our society running smoothly and give each member the best possible chance to enjoy a good and prosperous life. I guess that is probably one of the reasons why God gave them to us in the first place.

UNDERSTANDING GOD'S LAW

Every human being born into this world needs to gain an understanding of how to live and function successfully. We quickly master the use of the basic five senses (Touch, Sight, Smell, Hearing, and Taste) with which we communicate with the physical world, but it is not as apparent how we are meant to deal with things that are spiritual. What follows is a basic representation of one spiritual aspect of life that influences us all and is especially important for those interested in Christian parenting.

Understanding God's Law is a building block for a successful life

Initially, it is important to understand that God Himself makes a differentiation between the Jewish people and those of us who are non-Jews (also called gentiles). When God spoke to Abraham He called him to become separate from the other nations of the world, and through Abraham God chose to establish a people who were set apart unto Himself. The nation of Israel (Jews) are direct natural descendants of Abraham and it was through this nation that God brought forth His Son Jesus Christ.

God chose Moses to bring the children of Israel out of the slavery of Egypt, and he led them (guided by God) to the mountain of Sinai, where God delivered The Ten Commandments to Israel. (Exodus 20:2-17)

It is these same Ten Commandments that are the basis for much of the legal system that we use in the western world, indeed by extension our systems of democracy and government. But the aspect I would like to deal with today is how the Law of God (The Ten Commandments) affect us spiritually as human beings.

God gave the Ten Commandments to give mankind knowledge and understanding of what was right and what was wrong. It defined how we as created beings should relate to Him as our Creator, and how we should deal with our fellow man here on earth. The knowledge of God's law was originally kept only by the Jewish people, but there came a day when God Himself chose to send that knowledge forth into the whole world.

Jeremiah the prophet declared under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit that God was going to do a new thing on the earth and send forth the knowledge of His law into the hearts and minds of all mankind directly. (Jeremiah 31:33) God did this when He sent His Holy Spirit upon the earth on the Day of Pentecost after Jesus Christ's resurrection and ascension to heaven. Now the Ten Commandments are written in every human heart upon the earth and we perceive them spiritually through our conscience.

It is the Ten Commandments and the words of Jesus Christ that are the standard by which all the world will be judged when we stand before the Throne of God on Judgement Day. Every time we break one of the Ten Commandments, we are alerted in our conscience that we have broken God's law again and we feel shame as human beings. Our shame is meant to be an indicator that we have sinned against God's Law and need to find His forgiveness and mercy lest we be judged.

The way that God chose to reveal His forgiveness to man is through our faith in the Death, Burial, and Resurrection of His Son Jesus Christ. Jesus came to take our sins upon His own body and paid our debt before the Throne of God so that we as human beings would not be found guilty on Judgement Day. By turning away from our sins and asking Jesus Christ to be our Saviour and Lord we are brought back into a relationship with God and are born again spiritually.

In summing up here are the main things to remember:

- The Ten Commandments teach us what is right and wrong
- We all have this knowledge written in our hearts and minds
- Our conscience is often the indicator of whether we have failed or succeeded by God's standard
- We must all stand before God on Judgement Day and give an account of our lives
- Jesus Christ paid the debt for all our sins when He died for us
- Forgiveness and mercy are available to us all through faith in Jesus Christ
